

Tuesday, February 7, 2017

Chapter 1 (Part 1)

The Chentish people live a hard, bitter life; Chental is a barren rock in the middle of the Qorlean Sea, and its people have struggled to find their path in this modern world of qaa-powered streetlamps and steam-driven turbines. Once a band of proud conquerors, sending out regular raids against the Shorefolk, the Chent have in recent years turned to mercenarism. Their skills as sell-swords are highly prized, and their courage and determination in the face of overwhelming odds can be best summarized in one of their beloved folks songs, "Bid Me Not." Sung as a call/response between the Chentish men and women, this song is traditionally performed before any warband leaves the isle; it speaks of their belief in an afterlife, and demonstrates how death in valorous battle is the highest possible virtue for a Chentish man-at-arms.

MenWomen
Bid me not go down my dear
Into the Summerlands I will bid you go my dear
If the Summerland doth call
Bid me instead to stay my dear
To stay and hold your hand
But I will sing your life my dear
As you join that storied hall
Bid me not embark my dear
Towards those misty shores I will bid you sail my dear
Through mists, 'cross oceans blue
Bid me instead to stay my dear
And I shall die no more
But I will sing your life my dear
So that your course bears true
Bid me not depart my dear
Into the deepening night I'll bid you not to stay my dear
For such is not our way
Bid me instead to stay my dear
By your side, and in the light
But I will sing your life my dear
To light you on the way

Posted by Ancient of Days in The Gift of the Golden Blade at 12:56

Thursday, February 2, 2017

Podcast Movie Special: Groundhog Day

Yes. It's that time again. We cover Groundhog Day for our podcast movie special this week. What a great film by Harold Ramis, Bill Murray, Andie MacDowell, and Chris Elliot. Not only is this a hilarious film but it has a really great message at the end. Hopefully we can all become the type of people that are willing to ask others around us: "Is there anything I can do for you today?". If we can then not only us, but the world around us will be a better place. Duration: 1h 59m 28s

Various topics discussed in this podcast include:

- Joey's Culture Corner: 12:01 the Movie
- Facebook Find of the Week: Listener Fishhead - Don't mess with flute practice
- Pete looks like Chris Elliot
- Being a Weatherman is hard work
- New podcast idea: Joey's Holiday Lecture Series
- Joey secretly just wants to be a DJ
- Joey thinks winter is the best season
- New podcast segment: some top 5 list
- Top 5 things you would do if you were stuck repeating a day, over and over again
- Music Intro: Hear Me by Imagine Dragons

Direct MP3 Download
RSS Feed
Subscribe Using iTunes

Posted by Ancient of Days at 22:17

Podcast Movie Special: Groundhog Day

We cover Groundhog Day for our podcast movie special this week. What a great film by Harold Ramis, Bill Murray, Andie MacDowell, and Chris Elliot. Not only is this a hilarious film but it has a really great message at the end. Hopefully we can all become the type of people that are willing to ask others around us: "Is there anything I can do for you today?". If we can then not only us, but the world around us will be a better place. Duration: 1h 59m 28s

Various topics discussed in this podcast include:

- Joey's Culture Corner: 12:01 the Movie
- Facebook Find of the Week: Listener Fishhead - Don't mess with flute practice
- Pete looks like Chris Elliot
- Being a Weatherman is hard work
- New podcast idea: Joey's Holiday Lecture Series
- Joey secretly just wants to be a DJ
- Joey thinks winter is the best season
- New podcast segment: some top 5 list
- Top 5 things you would do if you were stuck repeating a day, over and over again
- Music Intro: Hear Me by Imagine Dragons

Direct MP3 Download
RSS Feed
Subscribe Using iTunes

Posted by Ancient of Days in Podcast at 22:17